

Upper Twin Lakes

Do you want a nice easy but very beautiful ride? Then do Upper Twin Lakes. To get to the trail head is about 85 miles from outer Fresno. The trail head is located above Huntington lake. You take the Kaiser Pass Road a few miles pass Huntington Lake and park at the Badger Flat Trail head. Usually there is good parking if you get there early and no construction equipment is taking up the horse trailer parking area. It is an easy 4 mile ride into the lakes. You will enter the Kaiser Wilderness on your way to the lakes. You will pass the lower twin lake and then in a very short distance you will bridge the hill to see Upper Twin Lakes. This area is absolutely breath taking. If you are feeling really adventurous you can continue on around the lake and head up to George Lake. First part of that ride is not bad but right before the lake it can get kind of touchy. Again not for Novice Rider or Horse. Heading back to parking lot you can take the Sample Meadow Bypass but last week it had a lot of down trees that blocked the trail. Had to do a little four hoofing to get around and pick up trail. But this route is very beautiful and well worth the adventure. If you have a favorite place locally to ride lets us know and we will publish in newsletter. Lets get out and ride.
